

UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF OHIO
EASTERN DIVISION

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA,	)	CASE NO. 1:06 CR 92
	)
Plaintiff,	)	JUDGE DONALD C. NUGENT
	)
v.	)
	)
JOSEPH BOOSE,	)	MEMORANDUM OPINION
	)	AND ORDER
Defendant.	)

This matter comes before the Court upon Defendant, Adam Darius Boose's Motion to Reduce Sentence Under Section 404 of the First Step Act of 2018. (ECF # 55). The government filed a Response in Opposition to the motion, and Defendant filed a Reply. (ECF #56, 57). The matter is now ready for consideration.

Mr. Boose was sentenced on November 30, 2006 after pleading guilty to one count of possession with intent to distribute more than 50 grams of cocaine base ("crack"). He took responsibility for 70.2 grams of crack cocaine, as outlined in the factual basis section of the written plea agreement. He also recognized in the plea agreement that he would be categorized as a career offender. After all applicable enhancements and adjustments, his total offense level was 33. He had a statutory sentencing range of 20 years to life, and his guideline range was 235-293 months. The Court sentenced him to 235 months, with five years of supervised release.

On December 21, 2018, the First Step Act of 2018 was signed into law. Section 404 of the Act provides that a court that imposed a sentence for a covered offense may, on motion of the defendant. . . impose a reduced sentence as if sections two and three of the Fair Sentencing Act of 2010 were in effect at the time the covered offense was committed. However, no court shall entertain a motion made under section 404 if the sentence was previously imposed or reduced in accordance with sections two and three of the Fair Sentencing Act, or if prior request made under this section was denied after a complete review on the merits. Reductions are not mandatory, but are left to the discretion of the sentencing judge. See, Pub. L. No. 115-391, Title IV, § 404, Dec. 21, 2018.

Both parties agree that if the Fair Sentencing Act had been in place at the time of Mr. Boose's original sentencing, his mandatory minimum sentence would have been reduced from twenty years to ten years. They also agree that his maximum sentence would have remained life imprisonment, and he would have been subject to a mandatory eight years of supervised release, rather than ten.<sup>1</sup> The government argues, however, that Mr. Boose's term of imprisonment should not be reduced because his sentence was based on the guideline range that corresponded to his total offense level and criminal history category, which have not changed, and was not affected by the mandatory minimum in place at the time. The Court agrees with this assessment.

Mr. Boose's sentence is the same sentence that this Court would have imposed regardless of whether the mandatory minimum had been ten years or twenty years at the time of sentencing. The guideline range applicable to his case has not changed. His sentence is justified by a variety of considerations previously set forth in the plea agreement and discussed at Mr. Boose's original sentencing. Further, the upper end of the statutory maximum applicable to Mr. Boose's case has not changed. Therefore, no reduction in his term of incarceration is warranted.

---

<sup>1</sup>Although the mandatory term of supervised release at the time was ten years, Mr. Boose was sentenced to only five years of supervised release.

Mr. Boose would be entitled to a reduction in the duration of his supervised release, however, he was already sentenced to a term of supervised release of five years, which falls below the mandatory minimum. Therefore, no further reduction in his term of supervised release is warranted. For the above reasons, this Court DENIES Mr. Boose's petition for relief. (#55). All aspects of his original sentence remain intact. IT IS SO ORDERED.

_____
DONALD C. NUGENT
United States District Judge

DATED: May 8, 2019